

Message from the Chairman

New Opportunities in the innovation-driven era

The year 2025 has been a tumultuous one, marked by significant political and economic challenges. Alongside geopolitical conflicts, intense rivalries between major nations, and escalating trade disputes, we faced the unprecedented challenges posed by the pandemic. Additionally, the sudden withdrawal of various countries from international organizations and the misuse of media have radically transformed the landscape of global cooperation and the world economy. In light of these changes, an important question arises: how can young entrepreneurs adopt a broader perspective to navigate these challenges while continuing their development?

As the Chinese saying goes, "There are opportunities amid risks and crises." Despite the turmoil, China's leadership efforts led to the signing of the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership (RCEP) by 15 Asia-Oceanic countries amid the height of the pandemic. This agreement fosters greater economic cooperation, enabling nearly 99% of goods to be traded freely among the member nations. Seizing this opportunity, WCEYA leverages its extensive network of Chinese entrepreneur organizations worldwide to enhance the growth of our members in the Greater Bay Area. Our strategy focuses on fostering connections with young entrepreneur organizations in ASEAN and EU countries, opening new avenues for collaboration.

In the next three years, we will strengthen our role as a bridge connecting young entrepreneurs in the Greater Bay Area with networks in ASEAN and the EU. Our aim is to facilitate cooperation among our global members, empowering them to become elite entrepreneurs in this innovation-driven era.

Thank you.

Dr. Chow Kam-Wing
