

Message from the Vice Chairman

New Model for Innovative Economy

We are witnessing a profound transformation in the global economy driven by technological advancements, environmental sustainability, and the demand for greater flexibility. The rise of digital technologies, including artificial intelligence, big data, and blockchain, has reshaped traditional business models, enabling more dynamic and responsive operations. Additionally, consumer preferences are shifting towards sustainable and socially responsible products and services, pushing businesses to innovate not only in terms of technology but also in their societal impact. As enterprising youth, it is crucial that we embrace these changes proactively. This means equipping ourselves with the necessary skills to navigate and thrive in this new landscape. Continuous learning through self-directed endeavours is essential. We must also cultivate adaptability and a willingness to experiment with new ideas and strategies. Collaboration will be key; by leveraging our diverse experiences and insights as a community, we can create inventive solutions that address contemporary challenges.

The new Model for Innovative Economy is not just a trend; it is an invitation for us to rethink how we create value in our communities and beyond. By staying informed, adapting our skills, and seizing the opportunities that arise, we can collectively shape a brighter and more sustainable future.

I look forward to collaborating with each of you as we navigate this exciting journey together.

Warm regards,

Wong Kowk-Kuen
